MONDAY, SEPT. 5, 1859.

AFThe eignificance of Ger. Magofin's innegaral with respect to national politics, in not obscure. It is clearly Mr. Brechiardge's bid for the Charleston menimation. As such, the address is perhaps worthy of alittle serving.

A very little scratiny indeed will show that Mr. Magofin in behalf of his chief has within the brief spans of a mooth thrown a complete someract on the aixvery question.

We presume that thomsands and tomo of thomsands of the men who advocated Mr. Magofin's election and vested for him will not hesitata to avear that in the canvass has ascerted and endeavored to muistain the ductine of absolute non-intervantion. They certainly a wore luttily to this effect at the time. In point of fact, Mr. Magofin unquestionably did one tend for the doctrine of absolute non-intervention throughout the canvass. He consumed for its not in theory, indeed, but in practices. He advocated it on the score of expediency, not of principls.

Practically, he agreed fully with Douglas. This it is quita too lata for any candid person to disprace.

Now, howwar, Gor. Magofin comes out numinion that were for the protection of disprets.

is nuncescary to say that this is simply a cort and sherply assumed by the Opposition of Kantuck tervine for the protection of clave property in the I referries med all the other lawful agencies of protection fail. It is the view which Mr. Ball adcated and which Mr. Magothin opposed from the ginning to the end of the canvage.

when on the failure after fair trial of the Executive and Indicial Departments, a demand for protection of the South can have but one other rese their fai ure, he is for resorting to Congress, and, if Co gress after "full time for reflection" shall re e grant protection, te ie for a dissolution of the mists and eradows in which he took refuge during the carvass, turns out to be a red-hot intervention-ie. The fact is too manifest for question. What does it mean? The answer is obvious. We have game has been and is to make Mr. Breckinridge the second choice of the Northern wing of the party without readering his position obsoxious to the Southern wing. The inaugural of Gov. Magofia rounds off this clewer programme. It remains to be seen whether or not ancess will crown its execution.

Gur own opinion is that Mr. Breckinridge will fall (goomiciously between the two stools on which ha in making such a desperate effort to sit. He has all at once reached too far and two holdly sound. "It is difficult," he says, "to conceive how any person who believes that the Constitution conders that the Constitution conders that the pit;" her will the Northern Democracy generally. The impression has long been abroad that the Vico-President is politically "a dead cook in the pit;" and we confess that we are beginning to give in to it.

Surely the signs of the times are pointing to this

If the Escient Government has one set of powers in the States and the same in the Territoria, what is the difference between a State and a Territory?

we should erect Museums of untural science, halls davoted to the Fine Arts and Schools of Design; we should have suburlan resorts to which we can be successed the amonyart of the importunation of the successed of the successed of the programment of the successed of the s we should have suburlau resorts to which we can drive in the cool of the evening, and we should beautify and render attractive our city in every possible manuer. The more that is expended for such parposes the more extensive will be the return; the more features of beauty we can bestow on Louisville the more admirers and visitors will she have. There is no use in making exercious to secure a large trade here unless these preparatory steps are taken. All experience has shown us that people will go to purchase where their leisure time is most agreeably employed. We heard a gentlemau say once that flarming the control of their poor ones. The procession passed by the Bluelevards and the sections to extend the knowledge of the producing capacity, the natural advantages and the immense and varied stocks of goods on hand. From this city, as the central heart of a great commercial system, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, like the great aorta, will soon give origin to numerous arteries, the wealth of which will permeate the whole, while the Memphis Brauch and the Mississippi Central will farm the iliacs in the very bowels of the cotton and aagar growing sections. As the main rond progresses we should make ourselves known to every town bronght into councetion with us; the husiness of the city should be extensively advertised, and those who have so long been ehnt out from access to us by ustural impediments should be induced to visit not. In order to effect this we must have united action and public spart, for it will require time, exertion, and money, all of which will be well invested if thus empleyed. There are various ways of effecting this which will euggest themselves to our readers if they give their attention to the subject, thut uothing will be mure efficient than personal intercourse. Let our business men travel on the route, stop at the towns, and visit the contiguous countiers, become acquainted with dealers, and invited all Nashville to come here for a grand collabration, when the antire line is completed next December. Let the Nashville pécule know that the iron link will bind us close lut a common litterest, and that all they can do to promote our prosperity will be cheerfully remained on the few representations at the theaters, but the fireworks limited our proportions and the text of the city and the serious and the event of the continuous countiers, become acquainted with dealers, and invite all Nashville to come here for a grand collabration, when the antire line is completed next December. do to promote variety and the political interests and appirations of John C. Breckinridge. The canvane was waged with an eye all but single to the Northern Democracy; the imageral address is framed with equal or even greater regard to the Southern Democracy. The one was designed to conclists that friends of Duglas in the North; the other is intended to cat under Deuglas in the South. The game has been and is to make Mr. Breckinridge to do not refer to the first of the game and we will under the plants of interest. The first of timered to find interests and will of interest. The first of timered to find interests and we distinct the promot a common lettrest, and that all they can do to promote our properity will be cheeffully re-ciprocated. We are to be their next door neighbors and we must califrate feelings of amity, which we

has in making such a desperate effort to sit. He has all at occe reached too far and too boldly. South. Douglas wou't touch him with a forty-foot pole. Nor will the Northern Democracy generally. The impression has long been abroad that the Vico-President is politically "a dead cook in the pit;" and we confess that we are beginning to give in to it. Surely the signs of the times are pointing to this tragical concellusion. It is due to correction in the enjoy. It is due to correct the wishes of the people and of the action of the action of the people and of the action of
